FAENA ART

Miami Art Week Happenings at Faena

On the heels of its 10-year anniversary and a successful fundraising gala this past October, Faena Art fortifies its mission of commissioning, producing and housing cross-disciplinary artistic experiences that are accessible to all. During Miami Art Week in December, the nonprofit is collaborating with international artists to host an immersive site-specific art installation on Faena Beach and will inaugurate its first dedicated physical space in Miami.

Founded a decade ago in Buenos Aires, Argentina, Faena Art provides artists with a platform to express themselves and a space for the public to access and interact with their ideas on both a local and international level. By focusing on ephemeral cross-disciplinary experiences, Faena Art isn't tied down to one type of medium or style of artwork—it's not just about a conventional painting on a wall, but rather the inclusivity of immersive installations and performances that seek to entice viewers to reexamine how they think about art. These types of projects tend to be forward-thinking and that is extremely important to Faena Art's mission—to contribute to future ideas by creating a platform for cutting-edge and experiential work.

Faena Art's main featured artist this year, Pilar Zeta, has been commissioned to create a site-specific installation on Faena Beach for Miami Art Week. The immersive installation will reference the history of Art Deco in Miami and serve as a portal to the present moment as each person walks through the installation. The Argentine artist will also be creating a sculpture for the Cathedral at Faena Hotel Miami Beach and is releasing NFTs (non-fungible tokens) related to her work through a collaboration with Faena Art's new digital partner Aorist.

At the start of the pandemic, many local artists lost access to their studio spaces due to lack of funding. Faena Art responded by opening the Faena Forum to an array of multidisciplinary artists ranging from photographers, sculptors, and producers at a time when the Forum was closed to public events due to Covid-19 restrictions. Seeing how much this first round of residencies helped the local artistic community, Faena Art decided to inaugurate its first-ever dedicated space in Miami called the Project Room to continue supporting artists in a significant way. To launch the new space, Faena Art has partnered with the new NFT platform Aorist and will feature Barcelona-based artist Andrés Reisinger. Reisinger creates at the intersection of art, design, and direction—his work bridges the imagined and the tangible, resonating with the experimental nature of the Project Room. His work will also be "tokenised" as an NFT, which, underscoring Faena Art's mission, explores new boundaries in art, as well as the intersection of the physical and metaverse. The aim of the Project Room is to encourage artists to explore new facets of their practice, fostering new models for social interaction that transcend the traditional boundaries of art, science, philosophy, and social practice. Each residency will culminate with an exhibition that's free and open to the public.

Each of Faena Art's collaborations seek to merge art, design and technology in a way that pushes boundaries and welcomes the community to experience and enjoy them.

Faena Art's Project Room Arrives to the Faena District

Faena Art is proud to announce the opening of the Project Room. This location marks the first dedicated space for the nonprofit organization in Miami, serving as a platform for experimentation and development of innovative ideas.

The Project Room encourages artists to explore new facets of their practice, and will host an artist residency program, a series of artist talks, and foster new models for social interaction that transcend the traditional boundaries of art, science, philosophy, and social practice.

Faena Art will be launching the Project Room during Miami Art Week 2021 by featuring Barcelona-based artist Andrés Reisinger in collaboration with Aorist. Reisinger creates at the intersection of art, design, and direction—his work bridges the imagined and the tangible, resonating with the experimental nature of the Project Room.

Every era has legendary figures who ignite the cognoscenti's imagination by dreaming far beyond anyone before them, and in the world of urban revitalization that visionary is Alan Faena. From the ingenious reconstruction of abandoned docklands in Buenos Aires, Argentina to the heights of luxury in Miami Beach, Alan Faena has built thriving cultural communities and districts from the ground up. With his new book, The Architecture of Being, Faena shares with the world the guiding principles that have shaped his own journey and the urban marvels he's created.

During the pandemic, when the world ground to a halt, Faena turned inward in silence and stillness to reflect on his path towards self-awareness, fulfillment, and the mastery of his own existence. The result is an inspired blueprint to self-transformation and self-actualization written with poetic acuity and the sagacity of a monastic teacher. The enlightening tome is organized into eight thematic pillars: Creation, Vision, Weakness, Silence, Path, Present, Love and Architecture. The chapters, illustrated with divinely cosmic charcoal drawings from the hand of Argentine artist Gonzalo Fuenmayor, explore the wellspring from which all creativity emanates and the evolutionary progression of turning ideas into material reality on our way to transcendence.

"To build my dreams, I first had to build myself," Faena explains. To our benefit, he's paid attention along the way, noting what takes us closer to or further away from the most vital version of ourselves. "The challenge in our transformation processes," he writes, "is to recognize who we were yesterday and who we'll be tomorrow." However, we can only glimpse our existence and its path if we are anchored in the present moment—the place in which we can exercise awareness and intention to consciously mold our life, its meaning, and the fullness of our existence. "We are our own greatest work," shares Faena. "All of my creations are simply ways of sharing those experiences with the world."

FAENA THEATER

TRYST

A Lovers' Rendezvous

Our Next Affair

Haven't you heard the rumor? There's a new legendary lover at Faena Theater. Her beauty is revered, her wit is razor sharp and her charm will steal your heart. Her name? Ariana Savalas.

“Faena Theater offers a level of sophistication and intimacy that's second to none—the audience is just as much a part of the show as any performer”

—ARIANA SAVALAS

The mistress of the modern Moulin Rouge has solidified herself as the top-billing burlesque queen holding court around the world, from the glittering Parisian Burlesques to the decadent Weimar German Cabarets. She now graces the stage of Faena Theater as the new master of ceremonies of Tryst—a seductive cabaret presented by Alan Faena in collaboration with Quixotic that explores love, intimacy and fantasy through immersive vignettes combining cirque arts and burlesque with live musical performances and striking visual projections.

A singer, songwriter and multi-instrumentalist, Savalas has garnered a global fanbase as a vocalist for Postmodern Jukebox, a popular music collective known for reimagining contemporary hits with the vintage overtones of jazz and swing. Savalas performs her original songs at the open and close of the show with signature flair, setting the night's tone from start to finish with an artistry rivaling legendary greats like Mae West and Bette Midler. “Ariana elevates Tryst to new heights,” says Shane Borth, Quixotic's composer. “She is sexy, fresh, hilarious and incredibly talented. Anyone who has seen Tryst before would be blown away by what she brings to the production.” After warming up the theater with an unexpected off-stage entrance crooning the lyrics of Fiona Apple's “Criminal,” followed by a rousing piano performance of her own “Legendary Lover” ditty, Savalas promises the cozy crowd there is a sensual something for each one of them this evening. “We have men who love women, women who love men, women who love women, and everything in between.”

The scintillating revue takes guests on a libido-inciting journey through suggestive tales of ardor and seduction from Savalas' past, present and future. The opening duet recalls a first date, which starts off in the bedroom, “as all good first dates do,” she muses. What ensues will leave you breathless: Impossibly sexy, barely dressed lovers spin from duo aerial straps in gravity-defying Kama Sutra poses to a stirring rendition of Chris Isaak's “Wicked Game.” It's the epitome of passion, romance, and irresistible attraction.

The rest of the performances are nothing short of electrifying with eye-popping Broadway-worthy costumes to match. A dancer in rhinestone pasties pirouettes faster than a paramour's heart in a tango trapeze number, a lithe fire fairy pole dances while wielding flickering flames, and the most exotic bird in the Faena flock mesmerizes with a Copacabana-era striptease. New to the cast, Emiliano Torres makes his red trumpet sing in exuberant jazz jams with ace saxophonist, Ernest Melton.

Through it all, Savalas never misses a beat—captivating the crowd with rollicking improv, ukulele duets, showstopping mashups of Taylor Swift, Ben E. King and Billie Eilish, and some provocative surprises up her tasseled-leather sleeve.

LOS FUEGOS BY FRANCIS MALLMANN

Holiday Feasts to Remember

Eat, drink, and be merry this holiday season by leaving the entertaining to us. Spend the holidays dining on decadent culinary treasures at Faena's two world-class restaurants, Pao and Los Fuegos.

"The holidays are all about family, celebrating and sharing joy," said Kaiwen Chen, Pao's executive chef. "Here at Pao, we are a family-style restaurant with modern Asian cuisine that adds a unique touch to spending quality time with loved ones."

For Thanksgiving, gather round a table at Pao for an exciting spin on a traditional feast. Roasted squash velouté with Ossetra Caviar tops the multicourse menu. Larger plates of fried turkey seasoned with black truffle adobo, roasted turkey leg rice with foie gras, caramelized vegetables and golden raisins come accompanied by sides of crispy brussels sprouts tossed with shiitake bacon and Thai herbs, as well as irresistible Japanese sweet potato puree. At Los Fuegos, delight in flavorful asado dishes fresh from the garden, land or sea. Hearty Thanksgiving fare includes a starter of wood-fired leeks and Romesco sauce, burrata and pecan praline; a second course of slow-cooked lamb shank with tomato chutney, sweet potato puree and a fresh mint salad; and a wood-fired turkey "Pamplona" as the showstopping entrée with potato puree, charred brussels sprouts and black truffle gravy.

For Christmas, give your family the gift of an unforgettable culinary adventure. "Our holiday menus are specifically curated for the season," notes Chen. Pao's truffle risotto is a robust delicacy of crispy Iberian ham, shaved truffles, burrata, and pan-seared wild mushrooms. You'll also find its signature Uni Tostada on the menu featuring sea urchin as its star ingredient, seasoned with avocado cream, tomato jam, red onion and sprinkled with furikake, a crunchy Japanese seasoning. For smokier fare, Los Fuegos offers a decadent starter of prime tenderloin tartare with shaved foie gras and organic egg yolk followed by fresh-from-the-sea Branzino, encrusted in salt and served with a Bouillabaisse sauce and root vegetables tournée. Leave room for the main event: a slow-cooked Wagyu beef cheek with Yukon potato puree drizzled with black truffle beef jus.

Savoring the meal of your life is one fine way to start the new year. Chef Chen recommends marking the special occasion with one of Pao's unique dishes like the roasted fish with chili patis sauce, served with fragrant jasmine rice and cooked in a garlic and ginger oil. "It's one of my favorite dishes. It carries a slightly spicy, savory, sweet, bold and herby flavor," he said. Pair the meal with one of Pao's crafted cocktails such as the "Elixir Gin and Tonic" or the "Cucumber Mez" to toast the New Year. Los Fuegos will have two menus on offer, including one specifically designed for vegans. "Conscious cuisine is a big focus for us—from where we source our ingredients to what we're offering on the menu," says Los Fuegos Chef de Cuisine, Sebastian Benitez. The New Year's Eve menu features a wide-array of gourmet dishes with Chilean Seabass confit and Périgord black truffle to wood-fired beet velvets with black truffle, Marcona almond cream and avocado mousse. The entrees are equally exceptional. There's a prime cut of hanging A5 Wagyu tenderloin or a charred cauliflower steak with black truffle, wild mushroom jus and cauliflower puree sprinkled with garlic chips. Benitez notes, "The world is changing, and our kitchen is changing with it."

Dancing After Dark

Saxony Bar, the super sexy, discreet sister to Faena's Living Room lounge, is where those in-the-know go to imbibe top-shelf libations and dance well into the evening.

The nightlife lounge tends to fly under-the-radar thanks to its penchant for exclusivity. "We curate the crowd to ensure the energy is always right where it needs to be," says Richard Filippi, Faena's VIP nightlife director. "It's a very intimate venue and it's important to us that people mingle, dance and have an experience that elevates their lives."

Saxony Bar is an homage to what nightlife used to be, adds Filippi, where people would go after dinner for a fun night out. The foil to Miami's famed ultra-clubs, Faena's late-night lounge is perfect for rubbing shoulders with a select, eclectic group of guests. "We have a diverse set of people converging from the Living Room, Faena Theater and Gitano, as well as those coming directly to the lounge," says Filippi. "What they all have in common is wanting to have a great time."

The cocktails are just as sophisticated as the onyx and gold-trimmed Art Deco space. Experienced bartenders serve well-mixed Old Fashioned drinks, Manhattans and Negronis with top-quality spirits like Angels Envy Bourbon, Woodford Reserve and Hendrick's Gin. "Our most popular signature cocktail is the Smoke and Sparks," comments veteran bartender Troy Straker, which is a heady mix of jalapeño-infused tequila and mezcal served with a dash of fresh-pressed lime juice and agave bitters. "Ladies love the Faena Spritz," he adds.

DJ Yacine Guerbi, former resident DJ at Cipriani New York, spins a mix of 80s, old-school hip hop, disco, rock, remixed world music and everything in between. You'll hear hits from Madonna to Dua Lipa, Abba to Gloria Estefan, Lionel Ritchie to the Rolling Stones. "People love to dance to music they can sing along to," Guerbi says. And he knows just what to play and when to keep the party pulsing all night long. "I want people to talk about what a great time they had for days, and then come back again."

FEATURED COCKTAIL Legacy

Crafted by Faena bartender Nikita Kusakin, the Legacy cocktail is a harmonious fusion of Martell Cognac Cordon Bleu, blue lavender, lemon, and dashes of egg white to create a smooth and balanced aftertaste. On the palate, the semisweet bouquet of the cognac with notes of honeydew melon, roasted almonds and apple butter is brightened with citrus and balanced with floral notes. Garnished with colorful hibiscus flowers and served in a Collins glass, Legacy is a light and refreshing beverage perfect for sipping under a setting sun.

Gypsy Glam for the Winter Flock

A fan-favorite on the jetset circuit, GITANO Miami Beach welcomes friends flying in to cavort in warmer winter climes. Known for its stylish gathering spots in Tulum and New York City, Grupo GITANO effortlessly marries a gypsy-chic aesthetic with elevated food and drink that is beloved around the world by the fashionable and flamboyant.

Bedecked with a garden of tropical fronds and bursting with bohemian brio, GITANO brings an air of Tulum to South Beach with luscious libations, Latin-leaning fare, and spirited diversion. As the sun melts toward the horizon, a bronzed crowd gathers for golden hour on the Jungle Roof sipping sunset cocktails like Jungle Fever—a mezcal elixir muddled with cilantro, chili and lime. The Gypsy Disco 75 is another crowd-pleaser. The cocktail, mixed with rosé champagne, St-Germain, Elyx vodka served up with a raspberry, is GITANO's twist on the French 75. "And of course, there's always our iconic GITANO Margarita, which brings a sense of familiarity and home, whether you're with us in Tulum, New York, or Miami," says founder James Gardner. Featuring a library of more than 25 types of mezcals, guests could spend weeks here sampling new spirits and never get bored.

A change in season brings a new winter menu to GITANO's dining room. Executive Chef Antonio Maldonado from Puebla, Mexico, plates clean and elevated Mexican fare. "The food is so authentic," says GITANO Restaurant Manager Daniella Fernicola. "The chef cooks with recipes that have been passed down through his family for generations."

Kick off a flavorful culinary journey with shrimp agauchile submerged in lime juice, habanero chilis and watermelon radish; Tlayuda, a handmade Oaxacan dish featuring refried beans, squash, queso chihuahua and crispy grasshoppers; and Langostine a la Talla prepared with cilantro chili serrano, chili cascabel and mint.

The mains are enough to make your mouth water. The barbecue duck and grilled octopus dishes are flavored to perfection with a requisite kick of chili heat. Vegetarians will not be at a loss: The must-try lemongrass cauliflower mole is cooked with guajillo chili, goat cheese and sunflower seeds.

Whether you're enjoying dinner in the restaurant, cocktails on the rooftop, or visiting Gitano locations in Tulum or New York, the gypsy-disco sounds from Leo Leonski never fail to get the crowd in the mood for a good time.

TIERRA SANTA HEALING HOUSE

Fire & Ice, A Journey Through Our Healing Oasis

The holiday season is a time for reflection and reconnection. Tierra Santa Healing House offers a wealth of treatments that combine cutting-edge technology and ancient energetic practices to look and feel your best.

Prepare for holiday events with Tierra Santa's Triple Lift Advanced Facial that uses Biologique Recherche's state-of-the-art Remodeling Face® machine. Designed to plump facial volume, the treatment combines two age-defying boosters with three electrotherapy currents to stimulate circulation, restore elasticity and re-sculpt the facial structure. Rejuvenated skin, less marked wrinkles and more pronounced facial contours are visibly noticeable after just one treatment—getting you camera-ready for all those celebratory selfies.

To heal yourself from the inside out, join Tierra Santa's two-day Advance Pranic Healing certificate workshops. The advanced session on November 2 & 3 is hosted by Angela Barrios-Cohen from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. (Barrios-Cohen will also lead a Pranic psychotherapy course on December 8 & 9). The basic workshop takes place on November 21 & 22, led by Tierra Santa's Spa Director Agustina Caminos. The workshops, originally developed by Master Choa Kok Sui, guide participants to get in touch with their spiritual core, cleanse and renew vital energy, and accelerate the body's natural healing process.

"Pranic Healing is for everyone," says Caminos. "It's a powerful healing practice that becomes a tool in your daily life to keep your energy strong, aligned and protected. It also helps you channel your focus, heal relationships and achieve a higher level of consciousness that brings peace and harmony to your life and to those around you.”

Throughout the winter months, guests can enjoy a full calendar of daily yoga classes including sunset beach sessions on Sunday evenings, as well as weekly meditation sessions including complimentary Twin Hearts, various classes hosted by Fernando Benevenia and full moon experiences with Ewa Joseffson.

On November 5, join the Modern OM community for an experiential event in the Tierra Santa yoga studio that explores divine masculine and feminine energies. Actor and transformation specialist Kevin Walton will lead embodiment practices based on his Creatorhood Initiate Program to manifest greater flow and ease. And on November 23, guests can embrace greater mental and physical well-being with a Shamanic Constellations workshop with certified spiritual healer Eric Lopez. Using roleplay and other healing techniques, Lopez does a deep dive into participants’ ancestral traumas helping them experience a spiritual unburdening and rebirth. During Art Basel in December, festival goers can drop into stillness with complimentary morning yoga classes on Faena Beach led by Lina Pinilla, as well as complimentary Twin Hearts meditations guided by Caminos. On December 3, pop into the spa’s Big Bang Boutique for a trunk show where colorful yaya belts from Guatemala are juxtaposed with high-fashion pieces like limited-edition Parisian handbags from Iris Noble and Rut Otero kimonos from Denmark. Caminos and Myk Likhov will close out Art Basel on December 4, with a Twin Hearts Meditation to cleanse and energize our entire energy bodies by activating the heart and crown chakras.

“When we become a channel for divine energy and we bless the earth and those around us with peace and goodwill, in turn, we receive all the blessings we give away,” says Caminos.

“Our magical Hamman is a must-use for the beginning of your healing journey at Tierra Santa –it will purify, relax, and prepare you to get the most out of our healing rituals and treatments”

THE TEPEDARIUM

Your Curated Destination

The holidays are upon us and Curio at Faena Bazaar is a one-stop shop for exclusive apparel and accessories, eyebrow and lash services, holiday gifts and fashion-forward Miami Art Week events.

“We’re constantly searching for pieces that are memorable and become the go-to statement styles in your closet,” says Danielle Licata, co-founder of Curio. “We have become known as a place to find your favorite designer brands as well as discover up-and-coming talents.”

In addition to labels like Carolina K, Silvia Tcherassi, Rosetta Getty and Bondi Born, Curio has launched some great new options for women. For chic dresses to take from day to night, check out Lee Mathews and My Sleeping Gypsy, printed tropical cabana sets from Dieji Studios, and sexy silhouettes from Cult Gaia and Aya Muse.

Curio also augmented its footwear collection featuring GIA/RHW, a collaboration between the Florentine brand Gia Borghini and model/actress Rosie Huntington-Whiteley. There’s also a curated selection of statement sandals from René Caovilla to more masculine chunky flats by JW Anderson and high heels from Aquazura.

The gentlemen will be happy to find an expanded lifestyle offering of swimwear, sportswear, and casual sets. “We like our guy to look effortless and relaxed, but still refined and with a discerning eye to quality.” The men’s roster includes Orlebar Brown, Officine Generale, Boglioli, OAS and thesalting.

CREMA GROUMET AT FAENA BAZAAR

If you're in the market for holiday gifts, Curio has one-of-a-kind jewelry pieces and a highly stylized selection of sunglasses that range from small independent sunglass brands like Jacques Marie Mage to runway-driven designer brands including Bottega Veneta, Saint Laurent and Tom Ford. A new home goods installation is the perfect place to pick up a vase from Le Double J, a Cire Trudon candle or a horn picture frame.

To indulge in some holiday and Miami Art Week primping, head to the Faena Bazaar's new blowout bar and Brow Salon located on the third floor. While you're on property, don't miss Curio's Art Basel activations including customizable products, exclusive capsule collections and the chance to meet global design talent. "Fashion is one of many art forms on display during Basel" says Licata, "and the store will have a robust event calendar to match."

Crème de la Crème

Faena Bazaar has added Crema Gourmet Espresso Bar to its mix of upscale offerings including Curio's coveted selection of lifestyle fashion brands, one-of-a-kind home décor and beauty salon services.

Located on the first floor, the gourmet café offers outdoor seating facing Collins Avenue, a cozy inner courtyard and a bright dining room featuring tropical accents from the banana leaf wallpaper to rattan furniture.

Known for its handcrafted coffee and experienced baristas, guests can pop in for a shot of espresso, a latte, chai tea, or a decadent affogato any time of day. A range of healthy juices, filling smoothies, and acai bowls are also on offer. The food menu is just as appealing with all-day breakfast fare like flaky pastries, open-face breakfast sandwiches and turkey scrambled eggs, to name a few. Those with a sweet tooth will enjoy melt-in-your-mouth chocolate croissants, just-baked cookies, or a dulce de leche-filled muffin fresh from the kitchen.

Other options—perfect for a midday meal during a beach day, after an afternoon of shopping or while working from a sunlit table in the restaurant—include toasted baguette sandwiches (think prosciutto with mozzarella cheese, chicken club and tuna salad), as well as a range of fresh salads and bowls.

If you're looking for something heartier, dig into tasty plates of penne pasta from chicken mushroom to salmon pepper to tomato basil (insider tip: pasta dishes are $9 all-day every Thursday). Cap off the day with a happy hour beer or wine under sunset skies (glasses of vino are half-off from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.).

"When we were given the opportunity to open at Faena Bazaar," said Yiannis Sotiropoulos and Makis Paliouras, co-founders of Crema Gourmet Espresso Bar, "we wanted to create a neighborhood spot that brought delicious food and drink to those enjoying the Faena District."

Faena Rose

Some highlights from this fall include—

Documentary filmmaker and lifelong Miamian Billy Corben—with his cutting humor and unparalleled energy—engaged members in a night of storytelling about his six-part docuseries, Cocaine Cowboys: The Kings of Miami.

Wall Street Journal tech reporter and CNBC contributor Tim Higgins provided a look into Elon Musk's mind, in a conversation about his recent book POWER PLAY: Tesla, Elon Musk, and the Bet of the Century.

NY Times food columnist and renowned author, chef, and speaker Mark Bittman joined Faena Rose for a thought-provoking conversation as part of its Wellness Series. Bittman, who's written more than 20 books on global food culture and policy, discussed his latest—Animal, Vegetable, Junk: A History of Food from Sustainable to Suicidal, and members were treated to a copy.

Harvard School of Medicine Genetics Professor Dr. Robert C. Green, MD, MPH introduced members to Precision Medicine and Genomics—emerging approaches to disease treatment and prevention that take into account individual variability in genes, environment, and lifestyle. The doctor also provided a limited number of personal consultations following the lecture.

US Army veteran-turned-death-defying photographer Isaac Wright shared his unbelievable story and images. In an intimate talk, he recounted his journey from tough childhood and devastating military service to the daring artistic pursuits that helped him cope with PTSD: shooting images from the tops of buildings, statues, and bridges that he'd scaled. The stunning photos shot from these heights and perspectives led to social media popularity, followed by a nationwide manhunt and four months of incarceration....and ultimately—to his calling as an NFT artist and an avid activist for social justice and prison reform.

In an exclusive, after-hours experience at the world's first Museum of Graffiti, members witnessed famed street artist Saber complete and install artwork for his upcoming show—in such proximity that some even became part of the art! The event was preceded by a private tour of the museum, and followed by a Q&A with the artist.

Additionally, Rose hosted fun Social Series events, including a dog Halloween costume mixer: Biscuits, Bones & Bellinis, and film screenings including Roadrunner: A Film about Anthony Bourdain and The Lost Leonardo, the story behind the most expensive painting ever sold.

ABOUT US

Faena Rose is an art- and culture-based private members club that brings together a dynamic community through a robust calendar of engaging and transformative cultural events. Art & Coffee with Lavazza

With a shared passion for excellence and a spirit of inventiveness, the fourth-generation Italian coffee company Lavazza and the Faena District are linking up to bring sustainable ¡Tierra! coffee to guests as well as a joint curation of arts-related programming.

“We value all our partners who understand and appreciate how hospitality, art and culture can converge and bring people together to create shared experiences,” says Alan Faena, founder of Faena District.

The coffee company’s involvement in the arts community dates to 1940 when artists were handpicked to draw the company’s famous collection of Lavazza figurines. Over the years, influential creatives like Armando Testa, Claudio Caramel and Steve McCurry continue to be tapped to design logos, coffee cups and calendars. Lavazza will draw on this artistic legacy to help shape Faena’s existing cultural initiatives including an Artist in Residence program that launched this summer, as well as new artist commissions across the District.

FAENA ALEPH

Why shrinking the size of life is synonymous of well-being

We have gathered some medical, aesthetical and philosophical advice that underscores the benefits of keeping things simple.

One of the great misunderstandings regarding modern spirituality is that to achieve it requires many things: readings, food, exercise, travel, groups and techniques. But perhaps it should be suggested that one does not grow toward the spiritual, but rather shrinks into it. In other words the spiritual is always there and stripping away the array reveals its shine. This has been said by Angelus Silesius in the most circumspect way: “The rose, without explanation, blooms because she blooms.”

But perhaps the simplest way of understanding it is in medical terms. Doctors, as has been affirmed by John Schumann, cannot explain the majority of symptoms, at least not at the level of detail that we would all like. “In spite of all the science and technology in medicine, what we doctors do is more about making educated guesses... But prevention is different.”

The prevention of illnesses – and it is worth repeating the cliché that the body is not a separate entity from the spirit – is something that medicine knows a lot about. There is an enormous body of epidemiological research affirming that, to be healthy, it is simply necessary to follow a series of steps. Schumann dares to list the following:

- Get enough sleep
- Move your body throughout the day.
- Eat well — a healthy assortment of foods. Mostly plants, and not too much. (An idea popularized by author Michael Pollan).
- Interact socially. Isolation is not good for the body or mind.
- Take some time to reflect on what you are grateful for.

It does not take too much effort to note that what Schumann recommends in his role as a doctor is the same that the greatest minds of all times have been telling us, as well as Eastern philosophies and even neuroscience. On the other hand, however, much is needed to achieve simplicity. Complexity is easier to sell. We also have the intellectual habit of thinking that sophistication lies in the degree of complexity of things. But in the Japanese worldview, for example, which lacks nothing when it comes to simplicity and elegance, it is believed that simplicity accentuates the interior of things: the refined is simplicity; simplicity is a communion with nature.

Thus, the tissue from which the great advice of the wise is made is simply the primitive law of life. Knowing how to listen to a tree without wanting to be the tree, knowing that looking out a window is a fundamental act for the spirit, knowing that calling bread bread and that on the tablecloth appears the daily bread. In the face of any mental, emotional or medical dilemma it is enough to shrink the reach of our life. It is enough to sleep, drink, walk, dance and give thanks at the end of the day.

Faena’s Key to Miami

Alan Faena is a master of curation. His aesthetic sensibilities have single-handedly revitalized entire neighborhoods in both Buenos Aires, Argentina and Miami Beach, transforming them into world-class epicenters of art, design, hospitality, wellness and entertainment. This winter, the brand will debut its Key to Miami, a stylish travel guide to the best Miami haunts through a Faena lens.

The compact guidebook will be available in all rooms and suites at Faena Hotel Miami Beach for guests to use as they explore the city’s dynamic arts-and-culture scene. The pages are filled with Faena’s favorite places to dine, shop and visit including a rich selection of architecture, art and design venues. Guests will also find insider’s tips like neighborhood walks that get you away from the crowds to under-the-radar art galleries to fairs and cultural happenings not to miss while in town.

Whether you’re checking out street art in Wynwood, sipping a cortadito in Little Havana or touring Miami Beach’s Art Deco landmarks, the Key to Miami is a trusted guide to lead you in the right direction, wherever you might find yourself in the city. And it makes for a great keepsake to take home as a memento from your travels.

Set the Mood

The sounds of Faena are now at your fingertips with the debut of the brand’s new Spotify account curated by Faena District’s entertainment manager Alejandro Lista.

Expect a lineup of songs that will reflect the many different faces of Faena. “If you’ve been a guest with us, the music will transport you back to your day spent lounging poolside or an evening dancing in the Living Room or Saxony Bar,” says Lista.

The varied playlist, which will be updated monthly, features everything from Argentine tangos and boleros to R&B, rock, and soul. “It will be a fun mix of genres that transmit a sense of romance and intrigue, and others that will make you break out in dance.” The curation is designed to take listeners on a journey, much like an on-property experience at Faena does. “It’s another way for people to enjoy the Faena vibe.”

Faena by Tony Kelly

Fine art photographer Tony Kelly, known for his highly polished, playfully subversive images, has his lens fixed on his latest muse, Faena Hotel Miami Beach, to shoot his fourth photobook.

At first blush, Kelly was immediately struck by the poetry of Alan Faena's living work of art. "When I walked into the hotel for the very first time all my senses were stimulated—from the grand cathedral entrance to the smell to the breeze in the courtyard to the live music playing in the Living Room. It was like an endless massage of the senses and the soul," muses Kelly. Every step of the way feels like a journey unfolding, shares the Dublin-born, Los Angeles-based artist, and the journey is propelled by the winds of live music that carry you from the beach to the garden to the bar." This place is run by an artist and you can feel it." Once on property, Kelly rarely finds himself with an excuse to leave. "It has the highest level of service," he says, "and everything works in perfect harmony." The collaborative book is a natural extension of Faena and Kelly's shared aesthetic. "My color palette is here, my musical taste is here; it all feels very organic," explains the photographer. "Alan pays attention to every detail. That is what I respect. That is what inspires me."
